K. Appendices

You must ALWAYS enclose:

- An extract from the Swedish population register for the referee, a 'family certificate' for a residence permit which confirms the address in the population register, marital status, children etc. The referee orders this from the National Tax Agency in Sweden and it may be no more than one month old (if the referee is resident in Sweden).
- A copy of your passport/ID card containing your personal details.
- Extract from your country's population register containing information about marital status and any children. (You can see what documents are required in your country on the Swedish Embassy's website. You can also contact the Embassy for further information.)
- A birth certificate for any children who are making a joint application.

To confirm your relationship you can also enclose:

- A copy of tickets or entry or exit stamps in your passport which can confirm that you and your partner have met.
- Copies of judgments governing custody or adoption (where applicable for children who are applying at the same time).
- A copy of a marriage certificate, photographs or similar.
- A copy of a pregnancy certificate.
- Anything else that could confirm your relationship
